

High honors for local 4-H members

Recognized during the Ozaukee County Fair Sunday with the highest honor bestowed by the Wisconsin 4-H program were recipients of the Wisconsin 4-H Key Award (from left) Abigail Garvey of the Cloverleaf 4-H Club, Jacob Peacy of the Knellsville 4-H Club and Amy Jentges of the Knellsville 4-H Club. The award recognizes outstanding achievement, leadership, citizenship and community service.

Photo by Sam Arendt

Local students earn honors at UWM

Fifty-three area students have been named to the dean's list for the spring semester at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Belgium residents Alice Apfelbach and

Megan Bergin are studying in the Letters and Science program while Joseph Duschene is enrolled in the architecture program and Kailynn Knuth in the nursing program.

Sonnet Bayer is enrolled in the Letters and Science program while Ella Crass is in the Pathway advising program. Both are Fredonia residents.

Grafton students Samuel Aria and Nathaniel Stillone are enrolled in the School of the Arts.

Trevor Bodart and Madison Masse of Grafton are enrolled in the education program.

Grafton's Zach Brandenburg, Benjamin Herzfeld, Dennis Kaestner, Niko Kallas and Matthew Meyer are studying in the English and Computer Science program.

Betsy Gleesing of Grafton is enrolled in the health sciences program.

Grafton students Ethan Huber, Zachary Kosidowski, Carissa Mooren, Kiley Niemeyer, Gretchen Schmook and Mark Steinbrenner are studying business.

Jake Markiewicz, Jetta Nunez-Mura

Pioneer Village

